

Human Anatomy & Physiology Society Awards and Scholarships 2025

Chasity O'Malley, PhD

Chair, Awards and Scholarships Committee

Associate Professor, Wright State University

comalley@hapsconnect.org

Important Details

- Awards are available only to current HAPS members.
- Members may apply for multiple awards in the same year, but may only win one award in any year.
 - Members may not win the same award in 2 consecutive years
- Most applications require a letter of reference from a colleague or supervisor familiar with the applicant. Letters are submitted with the application.
- Deadline for all applications and supporting material for all awards is January 24, 2025.

ADInstruments Sam Drogo Technology in the Classroom Award

This award encourages the innovative use of technology to engage undergraduates in human anatomy and physiology.

Award: $1500 to attend the HAPS Annual Conference.

Award recipients are encouraged to present a workshop featuring technology in education innovations at the conference.

Awards are sponsored by ADInstruments, but use of ADInstruments equipment or software is not required.

Gail Jenkins Teaching and Mentoring Award

- This award is for a HAPS member who demonstrates use of engaging kinesthetic, visual, and/or active learning strategies using inexpensive, everyday props to help students truly understand and retain the more difficult Anatomy and Physiology concepts. In addition, the award recognizes those who mentor their peers to also incorporate this type of learning to benefit more students. The focus of this award is slightly different from other HAPS awards that recognize incorporation of technology and student-centered or flipped active strategies.
- Award: $1000 provided by Wiley and registration waived for the HAPS Annual Conference.
- The award recipient is required to present a workshop reflecting their activities that match the focus of this award at the annual conference.

John Martin Second Timer Award

- This award is for HAPS members who have attended only one previous HAPS Annual Conference and are in need of financial assistance to attend this year's annual conference as a Second Timer.
- Award: $1,100 to use toward attending the HAPS Annual Conference.
- Applicants may be full-time or contingent college/university faculty or full-time high school faculty currently teaching anatomy & physiology.
- Award recipients are required to present either a poster or a workshop at the annual conference.

HAPS Conference Travel Award

Recipients HAPS members in good standing and must be teaching anatomy and physiology (or either, very loose definition) with an expectation of continuing to do so.

Also open to students and post-docs

Award: payment of the registration for the Annual Conference and $600 awarded at the General Membership Meeting at the Conference.

Recipients are required to present a workshop or poster.

How to Apply

<https://www.hapsweb.org/conferences-events/conference-hub/haps-awards/>

Fill in your info!

Get your letters of reference

Submit before the deadline (January 24, 2025)

Questions???